

Banksia ericifolia 'Red Rover'

This is a moderately dense, medium upright shrub with a more open habit than other forms of Banksia of similar size. It has tight lime green foliage. The cylindrical flowers are bronze to terracotta-red in colour and seen in autumn and winter. Highly attractive to native birds and insects.

A large bird attracting shrub which can be used for hedging or as a single specimen in a small to large native garden.

With a preference for moist, well drained, humus-rich soil, this shrub will withstand most soil types and situations in a sunny or partly shaded position.

Form Broad-domed

Mature Size 1.8 x 2m

Family Proteaceae

Small

Broad-domed

Bird Attracting

Coastal

Feature Flower

Native

Disclaimer: The material contained on the Speciality Trees website is for general information only. Although much care has been taken to provide the information on its website, Speciality Trees does not warrant the accuracy, completeness or currency of this information and its suitability to your needs. All material listed on the Speciality Trees website, its associated links and product sheets are varieties either ready for sale or in production. This is an information source and not confirmation of availability. It is strongly recommended that users enquire about product availability independently of this source.