

Prunus serrulata 'Cheals Weeping' (weeping standard)

CHEALS WEEPING ORNAMENTAL CHERRY TREE

This old Japanese weeping cherry is a prolific flowerer. Spring sees the pendulous branches covering themselves with a show-stopping display of clear, rose pink double blooms. It is highly ornamental, right down to its shiny, coppery coloured peeling bark. New foliage emerges a bronze colour, changing to green into the warmer months turning to gold, orange and red hues in autumn.

As a grafted standard, this tree makes quite an impact as a feature tree in any landscape garden. Spectacular flowering is a big selling attribute as branches thin and weep in a delicate manner. This tree is great for smaller gardens and lawn specimens.

This tree likes most soil types but prefers a humus-rich one. It can tolerate full sun or part shade.
